

Biden-Harris’ Build Back Better agenda and the black community

Don Graves

By Janice K. Neal-Vincent
Contributing Writer

During a recent telephone interview with Deputy Secretary Don Graves, U. S. Department of Commerce, he explained the restoration process for a better black community. The Biden-Harris plan is part of a comprehensive set of transformational investments to grow the economy which is poised for the next 25 years.

The investment includes fixing roads, bridges, tunnels and transit for people from their homes to their jobs. Additionally, providing clean, working water systems for the overall health of the citizens is inclusive.

The agenda supports the planning, removal, or retrofitting of existing transportation infrastructure that creates a barrier to community connectivity, including barriers to mobility, access or economic development.

Funding specifically for neighborhoods where historic transportation investments cut people off from jobs, schools and businesses is proposed.

In light of this, the Reconnecting Neighborhoods Program will provide $15 billion in new competitive grants for planning, technical assistance (TA) and capital investments.

The program will begin to correct past harms and reduce pollution, create more public and green spaces, support local businesses, increase job opportunities and lay the groundwork for more equitable transit systems and affordable housing solutions. This initiative proposed investment will fund and accelerate reconnecting neighborhoods across the country.

Graves indicated further that America’s broadband “deprives folks of access to the internet, [but] this country should never be in a place where parents are trying to get more than one child on the computer.”

In a recent statement, Vice President Kamala Harris summed up the plan this way: “Build Back Better is our collective responsibility as a society to support parents, to support the children of parents in the work place. That is noble, good and important work.”

“Underemployed parents or unable to work parents need affordable child care,” said Graves. Women of color are the vast majority for child care. So the Build Back Better Agenda “will help them get access to training and provide everyday Mississippians lower cost of child care and get child care providers back to work.”

Harris contended that there are hardworking families that are in favor of the Build Back Better Agenda “which is to support these families in a way that if they were our neighbor or a relative of ours, we’d all want to do.”

This includes addressing eldercare and their levels of comfort. To move them to unfamiliar living establishments may not be the wisest thing to do, given their current status. The eldercare situation entails, then, “providing resources that seniors and elderly relatives need to be able to live in their homes, where they want to stay, with dignity,” concluded Harris.

Disinvestments within the black community across America are rampant. Disparities in wealth rank high. The median black American family has thirteen cents for every one dollar in wealth held by white families. To get at this problem, the Biden-Harris Administration is expanding access to two key wealth-creators – homeownership and small business ownership – in communities of color and disadvantaged communities.

Jackson’s garbage controversy: Mayor attempts to ‘set record straight’

Citizens share mixed concerns about city’s appearance and current collection contractor

By Gail H.M. Brown, Ph.D.

After a number of weeks of disagreements between the city and the Jackson City Council on the garbage collection contract which ends today, Thursday, Sept. 30, Jackson’s Mayor Chokwe Antar Lumumba held a Town Hall Monday, Sept. 27, to, in his own words, “set the record straight.”

“There has been a lot of misrepresentation [and communication] about this,” Mayor Lumumba told a socially distanced crowd of a little more than 100 in the sanctuary of College Hill Missionary Baptist Church.

In setting the record straight, Mayor Lumumba chronicled a timeline and/or timeframe which led to his recent Declaration of Emergency

In sum, the chronology as reported:

The Request for Proposals (RFP) went out in March 2021; the city’s Special Evaluation Committee received several proposals (including one from the current contractor Waste Management, Inc.); the committee selected FCC Environmental Services, LLC’s proposal; and the Mayor takes negotiated contract that included one day a week pick up with five-days a week litter pickup to the council.

“The council votes it down not once but twice,” said the Mayor.

Vaccine uptick found in African Americans, but access and misinformation still confounds community

By Stacy M. Brown
NNPA Newswire Correspondent

The COVID-19 pandemic has reduced the life span of black males by an average of three years and has robbed Hispanic men of about 2.5 years, according to the latest information from health officials.

Black females have seen a more than a 2-year reduction in their average lifespan because of the pandemic. In contrast, Hispanic females fared better by losing slightly less than their African American peers. The life expectancy for white males and females decreased by just over one year.

The Kaiser Family Foundation (KFF) noted that its Vaccine Monitor found that more than seven in ten U.S. adults (72 percent) now report being at least partially vaccinated. According to the foundation’s report, similar shares of Hispanic (73 percent), black (70 percent), and white (71 percent) adults now report having received at least one dose of a COVID-19 vaccine.

That marks a change from earlier in the vaccination effort when black and Hispanic adults were much less likely to report being vaccinated than white adults and reflecting other data showing that people of color make up a disproportionate share of recent vaccinations.

“KFF’s analysis of state data on vaccination rates by race and ethnicity suggests that, when looking at people of all ages including children who are not yet eligible to be vaccinated, white people continue to be vaccinated at higher rates than either black or Hispanic people, although those gaps have narrowed over time,” the researchers wrote.

KFF identified the Delta variant, surges in cases, and increased hospitalizations and deaths as the primary motivator for the recent uptick in vaccinations. KFF researchers also noted other factors playing minor roles in the uptick in vaccinations, like full FDA approval of the Pfizer vaccine and an increase in vaccine mandates.

The most significant increases in vaccine uptake between

Jackson Heart Study appoints new director

The Associated Press
Dr. April Carson, an epidemiologist with a history of work focused on diabetes and cardiovascular disease research, is the next director of the Jackson Heart Study.

Beginning in 1998, the study is the largest and longest-running longitudinal study of cardiovascular health in African Americans. Around 5,300 Jackson-area participants are involved.

Funded by the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute (NHLBI) of the National Institutes of Health and the National Institute on Minority Health and Health Disparities, it is a collaboration between the University of Mississippi Medical Center, Jackson State University, Tougaloo College and the Mississippi State Department of Health.

Carson, who began her position Sept. 20, was previously an associate professor of epidemiology and associate dean for diversity, equity and inclusion at the University of Alabama at Birmingham School of Public Health.

Carson succeeds Dr. Adolfo

Carson

Correa, who served as director from 2016-2020, and Dr. Mario Sims, chief science officer who served as interim director in 2021.

Carson has extensive experience studying the effects of heart disease in African Americans. As an investigator in the Coronary Artery Risk Development in Young Adults study, she looked at factors that contribute to the development of cardiovascular disease over adulthood.

She is the principal investigator of a CDC-funded project on county-level social determinants of health, diabetes and hypertension in the southeastern United States.

Carson earned a PhD in epidemiology from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, where she also completed a postdoctoral fellowship on cardiovascular disease epidemiology. She worked at Shaw University in Raleigh, N.C. and the Alabama Department of Mental Health before joining UAB. She will be a faculty member in the School of Medicine and John D. Bower School of Population Health at UMMC.

In a press release, Carson said one of her goals will be focusing on how the physicians can take what they've learned about cardiovascular health in the Jackson Heart Study and implement it in local communities.

"For example, there are programs that are effective for lowering blood pressure, but these have not been very successful when carried out in different community settings," she said.

Garbage

Town Hall meeting in College Hill Baptist Church.

This took place in August. Mayor Lumumba also said that one-day a week is a cost-saving measure that other cities are also adopting. Other cities are doing it and see a savings, he pointed out. FCC was going to provide large trash binds to accommodate a once per week collection.

After FCC was voted down twice, the city had to go into negotiation with the next bidder which was the current company, Waste Management, Inc., who has had the city's garbage collection contract for 36 years.

As the clock ticked toward the Sept. 30 deadline to have a new contract in place, and after negotiations failed with Waste Management, amid the controversy, the Mayor used his authority to exercise a Declaration of Emergency and executed a contract with National Waste United, LLC, a purpose-driven minority coalition of four entrepreneurs led by noted Jackson businessman Socrates Garrett.

However, the Mayor told the attentive audience: "On Wednesday of last week they [the City Council] invalidated or nullified my emergency declaration."

That nullification ultimately nullified the contract with National Waste United, which had the capacity and the combined years' experience, etc. to begin garbage collection Oct. 1.

During the town hall, Mayor Lumumba openly explained his displeasure with Waste Management's performance. He explained how its employees came to him over a year ago with concerns of mistreatment, low pay and lack of benefits. "We have had some of these helpers come and tell us: 'I've work for Waste Management for 13 years; 10 years as temps,'" he said. "That means you've spent a decade giving your body away, and you've had no healthcare benefits," the Mayor expressed.

He also pointed out that he sat down with Waste Management after that with the workers' concerns and city's unsatisfaction with some of their performances. They committed to making corrections but did not, the Mayor stressed.

The Mayor asked former Waste Management employee Calvin Cook who attested to some of the employee concerns. "We were supposed to pick up over 12 tons to get another man. I told them we were picking up over 13. The next week Waste Management said, 'Hey, you have to pick up 14 tons.' So, we thought this is a big company; they do what they want."

Cook, pointing toward a fairly new worker in the audience, told the gentleman that the $15 per hour he's receiving just recently started.

During the town hall's question and answer segment, citizens voiced a myriad of robust opinions and concerns, including criticism of the Mayor. "I'm going to operate in the full light of transparency," said Mayor Lumumba. "I am not above reproach."

Questions and comments came from a cross-section of the city. Dr. Shelia Bullock who lives in Ward 6 commented that Waste Management collectors in her area have been very respectful and helpful.

"I appreciate that you have a very good experience, but I want to make sure that same level of service you got is applied across the city," said the Mayor.

Shirley Miller of Ward 3 said, "Jackson is dirty, and it is embarrassing. I personally believe that when some place is dirty and people don't want to go there, crimes follows. Crimes goes there." Miller wanted to know whether trash on the streets and illegal dumping could be put into the contract for the next garbage collector. The Mayor reiterated that those kinds of items were in the FCC contract that got voted down.

Belhaven resident John Harrison York simple wanted to know: "Is there anywhere we can we go to find a comparison across all the different contracts that were submitted; apples to apples, line item to line item? Mayor responded that they would talk to legal and see if something like that could be provided.

Dr. Dwayne Pickett, pastor of a local church, said the reason he got involved is because he heard about the plight of the young black men (sanitation workers) who are breaking down their bodies day after day to haul our trash as temps without healthcare benefits. "Mr. Socrates Garrett did not want to get involved in this...the other companies did not want to get involved in this. I called them," voiced Pickett.

However, he said, "Sometimes, we have to stop being the subs to these major conglomerates whose money does not stay in our city."

In somewhat of a surprised move Monday morning, Sept. 27, the City Council declared an emergency and approved a 30-day contract with Waste Management, LLC.

The Mississippi Link caught up with the Mayor after the meeting to simply ask: Where do we go from here?" He responded: "Today, the council declared an emergency again and they entered into a contract, which isn't legal, but they entered into a contract and so what they are purporting to do is have Waste Management pick up your trash Oct. 1."

The Mayor pointed out that he is going to have to do another RPF and go through the bidding process which takes time. "All this is a lengthy process," he said.

Eric Williams, a 23-year employee of Waste Management, said he has never personally been mistreated on the job and he does what he can to help residents with their trash collection cans and needs.

Vaccine

July and September were among Hispanic adults and those ages 18-29, and similar shares of adults now report being vaccinated across racial and ethnic groups (71 percent of white adults, 70 percent of black adults, and 73 percent of Hispanic adults).

KFF found significant gaps in vaccine uptake by partisanship, education level, age, and health insurance status.

Research revealed that 90 percent of those identified as Democrats had received at least one dose, while 52 percent of Republicans point to the booster shots as a reason to distrust the science behind the vaccines.

Researchers from various groups have acknowledged that the coronavirus has spotlighted the majority of racial and ethnic inequities in access to health.

According to KFF researchers, black people have received smaller vaccinations shares than their shares of cases, deaths, and the total population in more than half of states reporting data. For instance, in Washington, D.C., black people represent 45 percent of those who received at least one dose, but they make up 56 percent of Covid cases. African Americans comprise 46 percent of the District of Columbia's population but 71 percent of all Covid deaths. Approximately 49 percent of white individuals in D.C. have at least one dose, and they comprise just 19 percent of Covid cases.

Meanwhile, while D.C.'s white population stands at 41 percent, the death rate from Covid among white people remains 13 percent. Vaccination rates among African Americans by state continue to raise alarms.

Multiple states, including Vermont, Utah, South Dakota, New Hampshire, Idaho and Hawaii, report that just 1 percent of their African-American population has received a Covid vaccine. Alaska, Iowa, Maine and New Mexico report just 2 percent of their black population vaccinated. D.C. at 45 percent, Mississippi at 38 percent, and South Carolina at 22 percent, represent the highest vaccines among African Americans.

"The reason why black and brown Americans had low uptake of vaccines early in the rollout is that they could not get one even if they wanted to," Dr. Ebony J. Hilton, a critical care anesthesiologist doctor at the University of Virginia and founder of GoodStock Consulting, LLC, tweeted. Dr. Hilton has loudly denounced things like quick re-openings, anti-vaxxers and reckless gatherings during the pandemic. "The CDC guidelines were pro-white in design. Prioritization is defined along the lines of age and employment and not risk," Dr. Hilton wrote.

Dr. Hilton repeatedly has asked the CDC about changing protocols when it comes to booster shots.

"How are we not repeating this same injustice in the face of racial health disparities as it pertains to boosters? As a result, black Americans die at younger ages, higher rates, and have already lost three years of life expectancy," Dr. Hilton demanded. "Race is an independent risk factor," she declared, adding further that "this will be a stain on the history of America."

"It is inexcusable, and we, the medical community, and the CDC have to account for our contribution," Dr. Hilton concluded. Of individuals who received their first COVID-19 dose since June 1, 39 percent reported that the increase in cases due to the Delta variant was why they got vaccinated.

Thirty-eight percent said they were concerned about the crowding of local hospitals and intensive care units.

In comparison, 36 percent said they knew someone who became seriously ill or died from Covid, and 35 percent responded that they wanted to participate in activities that require vaccination.

Some still unvaccinated said they don't believe the vaccines can prevent them from contracting the virus, so why bother?

However, medical science shows that while vaccines cannot prevent the virus from entering a person's body, the shots are designed to help fight off serious illness and death.

Others who oppose the vaccines cite the seemingly rapid development of the doses. "They weren't rushed," former CDC Director Dr. Tom Frieden noted. "mRNA technology has been researched for more than 20 years. We're fortunate that it works extraordinarily well for the virus that causes Covid, and it may also work for other viruses, such as influenza, in the future,"

Dr. Frieden asserted. "The reason we see alarming rates of hospitalizations and deaths in the U.S. is because many people are still unvaccinated," he continued. "Booster shots may help some people, but our biggest challenge is vaccinating those who haven't gotten their first shot."

National Waste United, LLC seeks legal advice on its next steps

City Council rescinds Mayor's emergency declaration, nullifying National Waste's contract

By Gail H.M. Brown, Ph.D.
Contributing Writer

In an impromptu interview following Jackson Mayor Chokwe Antar Lumumba's Town Hall meeting Monday night, Sept. 27, at College Hill Baptist Church, Socrates Garrett of National Waste United, LLC and its attorney share the following comments with The Mississippi Link.

Q: Mr. Garrett, Rev. Pickett just pointed out during the Town Hall meeting that you did not want to be involved in this and that he called you all. Can you expound on his comment?

A: We knew that there was not one minority-owned company that could do the job by themselves, so he came to me because he knew I had the capacity to put together a coalition. So, I decided to do that. We have more than 120 combined years of experience in disaster relief, and we put together a package that laid over $250 million in a line of credit on the City of Jackson's table.

We secured a performance bond. We bought trucks. We did everything necessary to do this job.

The City Council voted to rescind the Mayor's Emergency Declaration thereby nullifying the contract we had. So, at this particular point and time, we have no recourse in order to be able to perform any work. So, what we are trying to do now as a company is to assess the amount of damage that has been caused to our firm by the council counseling the contract when we have already mobilized on it.

"There is a tremendous amount of expenditure that has gone forward. So, we are looking to our attorney as to what our next step might be as he represents us in this matter.

Q: Attorney Tremarcus Rosemon, sir, will you elaborate on where things lie right now for Mr. Garrett and his partners?

A: I own the Rosemon Law Firm here in Jackson, and I represent National Waste United and their agreement with the city. In legal terms, what the council did today was clear contract steering, but in street layman terms, it was robbery. Because when the Mayor came to my client requesting their services, my client entered into a legal binding contract. That caused them to begin taking steps, deliberate steps in relying on that agreement.

Those steps included getting trucks, getting together people, spending countless hours and money in preparation to the tune of thousands, almost hundreds and thousands of dollars. And now, for the City Council to steal that contract from them to ensure that Waste Management gets it has put my client in great harm, and they've lost a significant amount. My client is entitled to remedies for the loss they've suffered due to this breach of contract.

McLemore to be honored by Mississippi Center For Justice

Special to The Mississippi Link

Dr. Leslie-Burl McLemore, distinguished educator and community leader, will be honored by the Mississippi Center for Justice’s inaugural Fannie Lou Hamer Award during the organization’s annual Champions of Justice Gala Thursday, Oct. 21.

The award honors those who have dedicated their lives to advancing, protecting and expanding voting rights as an inextricable link to equity and justice as exemplified by Hamer. McLemore, a current member of the Walls, Miss. Board of Alderman and Professor Emeritus of Jackson State University’s Political Science Department, said the recognition is a very special one.

“The MCJ honor recognizes the social justice work I have done since my high school days in Walls, Miss., my activity at Rust College and beyond,” said McLemore. “By honoring me, they are honoring my family, schoolmates, friends and colleagues throughout my life. Hence, the inaugural Fannie Lou Hamer Award is a lifetime achievement award. I am humbled by the recognition at this stage in my life.”

It has been a phenomenal life’s work of serving on the “frontlines in the war for black humanity” as McLemore’s son, Leslie, described in a 2020 column.

It was as a college student that the 1964 Rust graduate’s dedication to civil rights bloomed. He served as the college’s NAACP chapter president, a Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee field secretary, a Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party delegate and vice-chair and Operation PUSH state director.

McLemore

As a long-serving educator and co-founder of the Fannie Lou Hamer Institute on Citizenship and Democracy, generations of Jackson State students have been positively impacted by the lessons of the civil rights movement and how they must also be a force for equity.

McLemore became the plaintiff in litigation that in 2020 led to the removal of Jim Crow-era electoral requirements from Mississippi’s 1890 state constitution.

It was for that work and the work that continues that the center chose to honor McLemore.

“Your work with Fannie Lou Hamer, the NAACP and SNCC and helped ensure African Americans in Mississippi could not only exercise their constitutional right to vote, but also could set forth a political platform framed by issues of basic rights,” said Vangela Wade, MCJ president and CEO. “Your legacy of social justice work exemplifies the leadership and courage to which we aspire as advocates of justice and equity with our work at MJC.”

Men of Excellence gala supports workforce development in Jackson October, 29

Mississippi Link Newswire

Frederick Douglas said, “It is easier to build strong children than to repair broken men.” It is in that spirit that Rosemont Human Services, Bottom Builders and Representative Zakiya Summers have partnered to co-host Men of Excellence Black Tie Formal. This event will be held Friday, October 29, 2021, at the Jackson Metropolitan Ministerial Alliance School for Workforce Development, located at 3171 Robinson Road (behind Chuck Stop) in West Jackson. Doors open at 6:30 p.m.

This program has a two-fold purpose: to inspire and motivate boys and young men by showcasing men from the community in a formal setting and to fundraise for the Alliance School for Workforce Development.

Albert Sykes, executive director of Institute for Democratic Education in America, will serve as keynote speaker. Comedian and motivational speaker Henry Sapp of Grand Rapids, Michigan will provide entertainment.

“I am thrilled to help provide a space to focus on the good and the opportunity inside District 68 through an intergenerational model – men bringing and showing up for young men,” said Representative Zakiya Summers. “As we look ahead to our time together, we are prayerful for a safe environment that will allow us to gather and carry out our purpose.”

The Jackson Metropolitan Ministerial Fellowship has been in existence for 51 years. Rev. Jimmie L. Edwards, pastor of Rosemont M.B. Church, serves as the current president. The fellowship, which is inclusive of more than 20 churches, uses the power of the collective church to serve the community. It has established a workforce development curriculum and is now working to develop the facility that will house the school.

“We have been through a trying year. Through it all, we remain focused and committed to doing God’s work. In our efforts to restore, renew, and revive the community, the alliance is standing on the vision of our workforce development school. We welcome all to join in and support this project,” said Pastor Edwards.

Men of Excellence Black Tie Formal encourages adult men to bring a young man with them. While this program is targeted toward men, we invite women to sponsor their husbands or other men from the community by giving a contribution. Any man or young man in need of formal attire should call Brenda Carpenter at 601-355-3121.

There is no cost for entry, but donations are encouraged. Contributions will help to cover expenses for the event as well as support the Alliance’s endeavor to construct a facility that will train young people from across the city of Jackson to become productive citizens.

Checks may be sent to Rosemont Human Services, 3930 Officer Thomas Catchings Drive, Jackson, MS 39209 or via cashapp to $zummcash. Any amount is welcomed.

Now Faith

By Shewanda Riley
Columnist

One of my favorite passages of scripture is Hebrews 11:1, “Now faith is the substance of things hoped for and the evidence of things not seen,” which encourages believers to have faith in the things that we do not see. When I hear most people read it, they read it with a pause after the first word Now, as though there is a comma there. Because I’d always heard it read that way, I was surprised when I looked in three different versions and noticed that there wasn’t a comma there.

The word “now” is an adverb that means at the present time. As an adverb, it describes or qualifies verbs, adjectives, and other adverbs by typically answering the questions of why, where, how and why. Keeping all of that in mind, it appears as though the word “now” is describing faith. I’ve always thought of faith in that sentence as a noun. However, doing a grammatical breakdown of the sentence made me look at it as not a passive noun but as an active verb – faith. So, the word “now” isn’t just describing a specific time, it is also describing a specific kind of faith.

It’s so fascinating to me how one word gives a hint on what might be hindering Christians from completely trusting and believing God. Sometimes it’s focusing on the wrong things and people. At other times, it is not holding on long enough to God’s promises. It’s not always the devil that keeps us from achieving God’s best. Sometimes we block our own blessings because we choose to focus on fear and not faith. And all because we don’t have a “now” faith.

Often, our faith is the “yes-terday” faith that looks ahead with hope but only as far as our memory of what God has done for us in the past. We might have “future” faith, which sees the impossible and expects the incredible. This kind of faith sometimes foolishly looks past certain present-day circumstances (and God’s hand in them). God wants us to have the “now” faith because it is that unique point in time where God’s will for our lives meets with our desire for change.

Gospel songwriter Jonathon Nelson’s song “Right Now Praise” reminds us that there is something powerful in a “right now” praise when he writes, “I am just one praise from my breakthrough... So I must reach down inside into the depths of my soul and bring forth a right now praise that’s already in me.” It’s a “now” faith and a “right now” praise because it’s already inside of us; we don’t have to wait for it.

As we remember the sacrifice of our Lord and Savior Jesus this weekend, we should also remember that It is our “now” faith that allows us to connect with God in the present and sustain as we wait with expectancy for our future breakthrough.

Trust in the Lord with ALL thine heart

By Pastor Simeon R. Green III
Special to The Mississippi Link

Little children do not always understand everything mom and dad say and do. They often ask why. That is the way we are with God. We ask God, “Why do I have to go through this?”

We sometimes start feeling sorry for ourselves. It is then that we need to read Proverbs 3:5-6, which says: “Trust in the Lord with all thine heart: and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge Him, and He shall direct thy paths.” God still wants to direct our paths and lead us, but we must be as little children and not lean to our own understanding.

Little children are teachable. Let us get an example of one who was teachable. Acts 8:29-33 reads: “Then the Spirit said unto Philip, Go near, and join thyself to this chariot. And Philip ran thither to him, and heard him read the prophet Esaias, and said, Understandest thou what thou readest? And he said, ‘How can I, except some man should guide me?’ And he desired Philip that he would come up and sit with him. The place of the scripture which he read was this, He was led as a sheep to the slaughter; and like a lamb dumb before his shearer, so opened he not his mouth: In his humiliation his judgment was taken away: and who shall declare his generation? for his life is taken from the earth.”

That young eunuch was teachable. When you become as a little child and get converted, you can be taught and pastored. In other words, the pastor will not have any problems with you. You will follow him as he follows Christ. You will listen to the messages he preaches and line up with the Word of God on everything, not just on what you like. Sometimes things will go against your grain, and you may disagree, but you need to line up with the truth and obey it.

David stayed as a little child before the Lord even though he was a man. David was a man after God’s own heart. In Psalm 58 David wrote, “Lead me, O Lord, in thy righteousness because of mine enemies; make thy way straight before my face.” David realized that he needed the Lord to lead him in everything. Then in Psalm 25:5 he said, “Lead me in thy truth, and teach me: for thou art the God of my salvation; on thee do I wait all the day.” David realized that he could not understand God’s Word unless the Lord gave him the understanding.

We need to open the Word of God and ask, “Lord, give me understanding and direct my thoughts, because in myself I cannot understand your Word.” David said in Psalm 27:11, “Teach me thy way, O Lord, and lead me in a plain path, because of mine enemies.”

Then in Psalm 143:10 he said, “Teach me to do thy will; for thou art my God: thy spirit is good; lead me into the land of uprightness.”

Seasonal flu vaccinations now available at all county health departments

Mississippi State Department of Health

Seasonal influenza vaccinations are now available for children and qualifying adults at all Mississippi State Department of Health (MSDH) county health departments. Flu vaccination is recommended for everyone 6 months of age and older as the best protection against the flu.

“We recommend that all Mississippians get their flu shots every year, but especially now with COVID-19. The flu vaccine can be given at the same time – or any time before or after – the COVID-19 vaccine. There is no minimum amount of time you need to wait between these vaccinations,” said MSDH State Epidemiologist Dr. Paul Byers.

Dr. Byers said that flu season can begin as early as November and last as late as March in Mississippi, but usually peaks anywhere from December through February.

Individual flu cases are not reported to MSDH, but the agency monitors flu activity through the ILI System, made up of healthcare providers in Mississippi who report the percentage of patients with flu-like symptoms to a statewide database. Providers participating in the system also submit respiratory samples for flu testing to the MSDH Public Health Laboratory. State health officials use this information to determine the presence and spread of flu throughout the state.

“We recommend getting vaccinated now before we reach peak flu activity. Influenza vaccination is especially important for young children, pregnant women, those over 65, and those with underlying health problems,” he said. “Flu vaccination is the best way to protect both children and adults from serious complications such as hospitalization, and in many cases, death.”

Those 18 and under who are eligible for the Vaccines for Children program can receive a flu vaccination for $10. Insurance, Medicaid and Children’s Health Insurance Program (CHIP) is accepted for children’s flu shots. A list of all VFC providers can be found at www.HealthyMS.com/vfc.

Adults who are underinsured or uninsured and who meet certain high-risk criteria qualify for an adult flu vaccination at MSDH county health department clinics. Flu shots for insured adults are now widely available through private physicians, pharmacies and retail centers.

While vaccination is the best protection against flu, basic infection control measures can also reduce the spread of flu and should be taken whether or not individuals are vaccinated. These measures include covering your mouth when coughing and sneezing, staying at home when you or your children are sick, and washing your hands frequently. Wearing a face covering in public places offers additional protection against the flu.

Please call your local county health department to make an appointment for your vaccination.

To locate a county health department clinic in your area or for more information on flu, visit the MSDH website at www.HealthyMS.com/flu.

Getting to the other side of money

By Gail White
Health & Wealth Life Coach

Money has two sides – a light side and a dark side. Most people live on the dark side in the murky gloom of struggle, bondage and even outright poverty. But a few have crossed over to the light side, the bright side, the side of true wealth. Financial freedom, time freedom and location freedom are all ours if we’re willing to follow the trail blazed by courageous wealth builders. Are you ready? Let me introduce you to our guide; his name is Coach 2X. Let’s go.

The story of his journey to the other side of money began deep on the dark side, with no money and no ability to get a job. A few wrong turns in life landed Coach 2X in prison and he emerged with a felony record that blocked all employment opportunities. We all know someone in this exact predicament, but even more prevalent are those who are imprisoned in various other economic and social traps – underemployment, deficient education, illness, disability, family dysfunction. The list goes on; the darkness is deep. But in his desperate place of despair, Coach 2X reached deep within himself and forged a plan to set himself free.

He began by implementing a rather well known but little utilized legal strategy – forming his own corporation and operating under contract as an entrepreneur. As such he was able to get jobs, employ others and earn enough to sustain himself and his family. Stepping into entrepreneurship was like placing his foot on the yellow brick road leading to the magical land of Oz.

The good news is that with a little research, education and coaching anyone can throw off the shackles of the work-a-day world and take the reins of personal finances into his own hands. Success in this brave new world, however, only works within a community of like-minded people who are motivated and driven to be free. Within such a community, Coach 2X advanced to the next level.

On this higher plane, he discovered a business model where independent contractors are paid when they create a workforcwe to sell products, goods or services – allowing people to be their own boss, set their own hours and enjoy unlimited earning potential. This $185 billion industry creates more millionaires than any other industry on the planet, yet only a few truly recognize its potential. Few are and are willing to put in the sweat equity and push through to success. But Coach 2X was relentless. Check out his time-tested formula for success:

1. Hard work. Be the boss and kick your own behind
2. Right mentor. Someone who has already arrived where you’re going.

3. Positive mindset. A reservoir of energy to power through.

4. Read, read, read. Become a life-long learner.

5. Perseverance. Push through the darkness and never, ever give up.

6. Sense of Urgency. Take action now.

7. Genuinely Caring Personality. Personal courage and vulnerability on display to empower others.

These seven key strategies led to the secret passageway to the other side of money. In the last 9 months Coach 2X earned nearly $500,000 and is on track to becoming that proverbial 7 figure income earner for the remainder of his life. And, best of all, he knows that his own personal success is increased whenever he reaches back and pulls others into the light with him – a Harriet Tubman concept of freedom fighting played out in the financial arena.

The resource he discovered is blockchain-based so it’s all about technology: the new money system, cryptocurrency and digitized (or tokenized) assets. Although many think of this crypto stuff as the wave of the future, true insiders recognize that it’s here now, and it’s here to stay. Those who get in early, like Coach 2X, have the most to gain.

For the first time in history, a great wealth transfer is happening, and the door is open for the common man to get in before the big banks and money brokers.

The blockchain world offers opportunities for everyone to earn residual income and gain considerable wealth. Even while working a traditional job, those new to the crypto world can participate in a potentially lucrative “side hustle” to supplement a regular salary.

Residual income comes in two flavors: passive and active.

Passive, residual income is derived from assets that are acquired once and then pay interest or dividends into the future. Some of these future payments may be for a designated period of time but some are payments for life and can be left as a legacy for future generations within the family!

But the most profitable income opportunities are found in the active residual income, where the activities of a collective of people are leveraged to increase the wealth of every individual within the group, as they build the worth of the community as a whole.

For Coach 2X, the bulk of earnings is derived from his consistent work ethic – month after month – and his ability to duplicate that effort in those who have followed him into the arena. Together, they form an unstoppable wealth generating machine.

Biden’s promise for diverse judges and federal court diversity

By Ben Jealous
People For the American Way

One of the most important reasons to vote Donald Trump out of the White House was to stop him from packing our federal courts with even more anti-voting-rights, anti-equality, pro-corporate judges.

Stopping the flood of bad Trump judges was a huge accomplishment for every organizer and voter who helped elect Joe Biden as president. And that’s only part of the good news. President Biden is making history with the most diverse set of judicial nominees ever.

President Trump’s judicial nominees were overwhelmingly white men, often young and unqualified. They were almost always picked for their commitment to a right-wing judicial ideology that makes it harder for millions of Americans to count on the courts for justice. Thanks to Trump and his Republican enablers in the Senate, we will be dealing with hundreds of those judges for years to come.

Elections matter. Right now, instead of more judges hand-picked by right-wing legal activists and their corporate allies, President Biden is making good on his promise to bring greater diversity to our federal courts. Biden is naming far more brilliant black judges and women judges than any other president – including Barack Obama.

Let’s look at some numbers. Because they are impressive.

More than 30 percent of Biden’s judicial nominees so far have been black. Fewer than 5 percent of Trump’s judicial picks were black.

More than a quarter of Biden’s judicial nominees have been black women. Under Trump, it was less than one percent. In fact, almost half of President Biden’s judicial nominees are women of color.

Biden has been in office for less than a year, and he has already doubled the number of black women judges on the circuit courts – the highest level of federal courts below the Supreme Court. Trump named zero black judges to the circuit courts; nearly 40 percent of Biden’s circuit court nominees have been black.

There’s also a lot more diversity in Biden nominees’ life experiences and professional backgrounds. They aren’t all corporate lawyers and law professors. Almost one-third of them have had experience as public defenders. Some of them have worked at respected civil rights organizations. Some have devoted their legal careers to protecting and representing workers. One started her career at the Legal Aid Society.

This is how we get federal courts that represent all of us, not just the most privileged and powerful.

And that brings us back to elections. President Biden has been able to get his nominees confirmed – more lifetime judges at this point in his term in office since Gerald Ford – because voters in Georgia elected Sens. Raphael Warnock and Jon Ossoff.

If Republicans still held a Senate majority, Mitch McConnell would be slow-walking and stopping Biden’s judicial nominees. When Trump was in power, McConnell laughed and bragged about how he kept so many of President Obama’s nominees from getting confirmed so that Trump would have lots of vacancies to fill.

McConnell would love to regain the power to block Biden’s judicial nominees. He would love to return to his practice of refusing to schedule hearings and votes on even the most qualified judges. He would love to abuse his power to keep hundreds of judicial seats vacant in the hopes that Trump or some other Republican will take back the White House in 2024. And bring back the flood of white, right-wing men determined to impose their ideology on the federal courts and on all of us.

We can’t let that happen.

Let’s praise the good work being done by the Biden White House and Senate Democrats. Let’s thank them for bringing balance and diversity and a commitment to equal justice for all to the federal courts. And let’s work as hard as we can to keep the Senate and White House in Democratic hands in 2022 and 2024.

The booster shots are available. Will we take them?

By James B. Ewers Jr.
President Emeritus
Teen Mentoring Committee of Ohio

COVID-19 has made us worn and weary. Our temperaments have changed.

We have become frazzled and on edge. Our patience is wearing thin. We are just out of sorts.

The deaths and illnesses caused by COVID-19 are staggering. The tragedy is that the numbers keep increasing. Sometimes it seems as if there is no end in sight.

If there is any good news about this, it is that the vaccine is working. It doesn’t matter what you took, as long as you took one of them.

I believe that taking the vaccine was a must. It was a health imperative. Those who say otherwise were whistling a bad tune. But do not worry, when it hits them, they will change their tune and admit their negligence.

Still at this juncture, we have over 70 million people in this country that have not received their first shot. That is a big number given the fact we have been talking about the vaccine for months. Despite this statistic, booster shots are now a part of the vaccine regiment.

Pfizer began its booster shot program last week. However, it is not for everybody.

“Consequently, the Pfizer-BioNTech COVID-vaccine is authorized for use as a booster dose among individuals who completed a primary series of the Pfizer-BioNTech COVID vaccine,” said Dr. Doran Fink, a deputy director of the FDA’s Division of Vaccines.

One of the groups that it is for is people who are 65 years and older. According to the Centers for Disease Control, this is one of the most vulnerable groups.

If you recall, President Joe Biden wanted everybody to get a booster shot 8 months after the first shot.

That is not happening.

There is a difference of opinion among healthcare experts about this additional shot and this is not helping the vaccine cause.

This divide is strengthening the case for some not to get vaccinated. I can hear them saying now, I told you so. I told you it wouldn’t work.

Dr. William Schaffner of the Vanderbilt University Medical Center in Nashville Tennessee believes there should be two goals.

The first goal is to get people vaccinated and the second is to get them to take the booster shot.

These are achievable goals and we the people need to get onboard. Our lives are at stake, and we are at risk each day that we do not have maximum protection.

Geography and statistics tell us where the un-vaccinated are living. Their reasons for not taking the vaccine are varied and vague. What the science is telling them is that their living is being compromised.

Reports say over 90% of the people in hospitals with the Coronavirus are un-vaccinated. When will it matter to them? Maybe never.

As the booster shot by Pfizer is out, availability and access will be concerns at the health desk.

There is still too much vaccine hesitancy among the American public. Since the initial vaccine rollout there has been a strong marketing campaign. Stars and celebrities are touting the vaccine. We will see the same push for the booster shots.

In the coming weeks and months, other companies will release their booster shots. Will there be the same requirements? We will have to wait and see.

Let us hope going forward that there is consensus among the experts about the parameters. They must be crystal clear. These are sensitive matters and perceptions go a long way.

We must trust and believe in our medical experts.

The important thing is the vaccines and booster shots are trying to prevent the spread of the deadliest virus in our lifetime. It is called COVID-19.

Skipping out on the second dose adds to the “Pandemic of The Unvaccinated”

By Josephine Reed
Creative Marketing Resources, Inc.

The second wave of COVID-19 has been filled with uncertainty and unpredictability of the virus itself. However, we’ve had plenty of opportunities to avoid preventable downfalls. The two-dose mRNA vaccines have been confirmed to be highly effective at preventing infection, illness and hospitalization, even from the now prevalent Delta variant according to vaccine health officials pointing to emerging research.

Despite the apparent importance of being fully vaccinated, there has been a lag in persons in the United States who are receiving the vaccine to receive their second and get the full protection both shots offer. Fifteen million people in the United States have missed their second shot according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC).

In a recent town hall hosted by the Black Coalition Against Covid, guest speaker Dr. Simira L. Brown said, “The level of protection you’re able to get to is significantly different with one shot versus two, and that’s exactly the reason why you need two shots if you’re getting the Pfizer which is the vaccine that’s approved down to 12 [years old].” She added, “So if you’re going to get into that over 90 percent protection which is incredibly good, and protects against every single variant that we have seen here in the U.S., you have to get both to be able to get to that level.”

Public health and vaccine experts have long emphasized the importance of following the course of full vaccination. But a newly published study by Stanford Medicine quantifies how important a second dose of an mRNA vaccine is when it comes to fighting off COVID-19.

Experts also say that by getting a second dose of the mRNA vaccine, your immune cells will remember their previous encounter with that very same vaccine.

The second shot is recommending three weeks after the first Pfizer-BioNTech shot or four weeks after the first Moderna shot. Second doses were considered missed if more than 42 days had passed since the initial shot.

“Getting you to come in and get tested is one step, getting you to get vaccinated is another. Getting you to get your second dose has become its own barrier,” said Nic Lee with the Rafiki Coalition for Health & Wellness

More than 15 million people in the U.S. still haven’t gotten a second dose of a COVID-19 vaccine. A misconception persists that one dose provides ample protection from the virus. Additionally, there’s a fear of that a second dose will lead to side effects – which are reportedly more severe than after the first dose for some people.

Challenges of getting an appointment and finding the time to get a second dose are among the other reasons people have given for not getting fully vaccinated to fight COVID-19.

Dr. Nerissa Price of WakeMed Health in Raleigh, NC stresses that getting two doses of a COVID-19 vaccine will equip more black Americans with good protection from the virus. “It’s really not until after that second shot that you get full protection,” Dr. Price said. And full protection we need to clarify as well does not mean 100 percent protection,” she added. “It still means that people need to be careful in certain settings where there’s a high number of unvaccinated individuals. I have the simple math. The first shot gets you half the way. The second shot gets you all the way. Even still, we need to be mindful of the new variants and the new information that gets released every day.”

Regardless of whether you’re busy or want to avoid feeling under the weather, experts say getting fully vaccinated is vital, especially with the highly transmissible Delta variant continuing to spread throughout the country. Banding together with your doctor and doing your part by becoming fully vaccinated can protect our lives, the lives of our loved ones and the lives of those in our black communities.

BOOK REVIEW:

POLITICS PARASITES ROMANCE IN AFRICA

BY TED PONTIFET

By Janette Domingo, Ph.D.
Dean Emeritus, John Jay College

Ted Pontifet's very personal memoir, Politics Parasites Romance in Africa, captures the youthful optimism and spirit of adventure of the 1960's.

Pontifet vividly recalls a moment in time when Africa seemed to speak directly to African Americans, inviting them to return to help rebuild the motherland. Some like Mose Jackson believed in themselves and in Africa enough to respond to the call.

In Politics Parasites Romance in Africa, Casablanca is portrayed as an exotic gateway to Africa, but the real story unfolds in newly independent Ghana. Although sprinkled with a few now internationally recognizable names, this is primarily a story of the many less well-known artists and other African Americans – or “Afros” as the Ghanaians called them – who sojourned in Africa in the early 1960's.

For multi-talented artist Mose Jackson and his fellow Afro expatriates, their romantic vision of Africa is confronted by very real cultural, personal and political challenges and contradictions. They learn the hard lesson that although they may have been called to Africa, not all will be chosen to remain and make a long-term contribution or succeed in being fully accepted and integrated into Africa.

Politics Parasites Romance in Africa arouses every emotion. It's often laugh-out-loud funny and joyously sensual. It also sings the blues, but counters with the celebration of small victories, appreciation of human generosity, and triumph of personal growth.

Politics Parasites Romance in Africa is a feast for all the senses. Through Mose Jackson, we can see, hear, feel, taste and smell the places and people of Accra. The visual artist's imagery and attention to detail bring the African scene to life. His jazz references and metaphors keep him grounded in a very African American sensibility.

We are drawn into Mose Jackson's world of colorful friends and breathtaking lovers. As the story ends, we are left wanting to know what's next for Mose Jackson.

UDC President perfectly explains the tremendous value of HBCUs

By Stacy M. Brown
NNPA Newswire Correspondent

Historically Black colleges and Universities in America remain as vital as ever and University of the District of Columbia President Ronald Mason Jr. took less than a minute to explain.

“We’ve held America together until it’s able to figure out its issues with race,” Mason said during a visit to National Newspaper Publishers Association’s (NNPA) state-of-the-art television studio in Northwest, Washington, D.C.

“The challenge for America is that you hear companies say they can’t find talent – whether it’s cybersecurity, nursing or IT,” Mason expressed.

“Well, one reason is that, for the system America designed to exist, 77 percent of the wealth

President Ronald Mason Jr. says either white people are supreme, or we live in a system designed to produce those kinds of numbers. There is no science to say that the first thing is right, so it’s the second.

is controlled by 10 percent of the population, and 90 percent of that 10 percent is white.”

Further making the case, Mason continued:

“Either white people are supreme, or we live in a system designed to produce those kinds of numbers. There is no science to say that the first thing is right, so it’s the second.

“To produce those outcomes, you have to have a system that eliminates talent as part of the education process because you can’t allow talent to compete on the basis of natural talent and end up with those kinds of numbers.”

Mason visited the NNPA studios to tape an appearance on the PBS-TV and PBS-World news and talk show, The Chavis Chronicles, with host and NNPA President and CEO Dr. Benjamin F. Chavis Jr.

He declared that HBCUs “overproduce” the talent needed to fill significant positions inside and outside corporate America.

“We correctly diagnose the problem, we know what the issue is, and we know what our students face and are up against,” Mason remarked.

“We learn to implement an education system that adjusts to the damage that white supremacy tries to do. People need not support HBCUs out of the goodness of their hearts. They need to do it because they need the talent and 90 percent of the talent in America is inside these vast and untapped resources that HBCUs specialize in and produce.”

Earlier this year, UDC announced an Independent Economic Impact Study that revealed the university generated $406 million within the District of Columbia and $523 million in annual financial impact in the Washington Metropolitan Region.

“The results of the study demonstrate UDC’s value proposition to the Washington Metropolitan Area as a force for good through its research, academic preparation, job creation and role in community development,” Mason noted.

As the District of Columbia’s only public university, UDC, has a longstanding commitment to providing affordable, world-class instruction that addresses the needs and challenges of groups historically denied access to higher education, Mason added.

“This independent study confirms the importance of having a strong public system of higher learning in the District as the anchor for a sustainable, resilient, equitable urban community,” he said.

HCSD recognizes National Hispanic American Heritage Month

Each year, Americans observe National Hispanic Heritage Month from September 15 to October 15, by celebrating the histories, cultures and contributions of American citizens whose ancestors came from Spain, Mexico, the Caribbean and Central and South America.

The observation started in 1968 as Hispanic Heritage Week under President Lyndon Johnson and was expanded by President Ronald Reagan in 1988 to cover a 30-day period starting on September 15 and ending on October 15. It was enacted into law August 17, 1988, on the approval of Public Law 100-402.

The day of September 15 is significant because it is the anniversary of independence for Latin American countries Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua. In addition, Mexico and Chile celebrate their independence days September 16 and September 18, respectively. Also, Columbus Day or Día de la Raza, which is October 12, falls within this 30-day period.

JSU wins home opener

By Tim Ward
Sports Editor

Over 33,000 fans attended Jackson State's home opener last Saturday. Delta State battled back after JSU jumped out to a 17-0 halftime in the W.C. Gorden Classic, falling 24-17.

The Statesmen showed their heart and determination in the second half. Coach Deion Sanders took time out to acknowledge personally, the job Delta State's running back, Deion Dampier, did. Dampier rushed for 93 yards on 8 carries. He was a spark plug and catalyst for Delta State.

The Darkside Defense held on to seal the victory. The offense only mustered 1 touchdown in the second half when Shedeur Sanders connected with Warren Newman for a 6-yard touchdown. Sanders was solid in his collegiate home opener.

Shedeur completed 25 of 36 passes for 251 yards with 3 touchdown passes. Santee Marshall and Peyton Pickett combined for 105 rushing yards. Consistency has haunted the offense all season.

Sustaining drives and turnovers have plagued the offense. With the bye week here, look for JSU to refine somethings offensively while giving coach Prime some rest. Coach Prime had surgery earlier in the week on his foot, but still coached the game Saturday.

Next up for JSU is a road game against Alabama A&M.

The win Saturday puts Jackson State with a 3-1 record heading into the bye week.
